SIMMONS LIVER REGULATOR

For Dyspepsia, Costiveness, Sick Headache, Chronic Diarrhœa, Jaundice, Impurity of the Blood, Fever and Ague, Malaria, and all Diseases caused by Derangement of Liver, Bowels and Kidneys.

SYMPTOMS OF A DISEASED LIVER.

Bad Breath; Pain in the Side, sometimes the pain is felt under the Shoulder-blade, mistaken for Rheumatism; general loss of appetite; Bowels generally costive, sometimes alternating with lax; the head is troubled with pain, is dull and heavy, with considerable loss of memory, accompanied with a painful sensation of leaving undone something which ought to have been done; a slight, dry cough and flushed face is sometimes an attendant, often mistaken for consumption; the patient complains of weariness and debility; nervous, easily startled; feet cold or burning, sometimes a prickly sensation of the skin exists; spirits are low and despondent, and, although satisfied that exercise would be beneficial, yet one can hardly summon up fortitude to try it—in fact, distrusts every remedy. Several of the above symptoms attend the disease, but cases have occurred when but few of them existed, yet examination after death has shown the Liver to have been extensively deranged.

It should be used by all persons, old and young, whenever any of the above symptoms appear.

Persons Traveling or Living in Unhealthy Localities, by taking a dose occasionally to keep the Liver in healthy action, will avoid all Malaria, Bilious attacks, Dizziness, Nausea, Drowsiness, Depression of Spirits, etc. It will invigorate like a glass of wine, but is no intoxicating beverage.

If You have eaten anything hard of digestion, or feel heavy after meals, or sleepless at night, take a dose and you will be relieved.

Time and Doctors' Bills will be saved by always keeping the Regulator in the House!

For, whatever the ailment may be, a thoroughly safe purgative, alterative and tonic can never be out of place. The remedy is harmless and does not interfere with business or pleasure.

IT IS PURELY VEGETABLE,
And has all the power and efficacy of Calomel or Quinine, without any of the injurious after effects.

A Governor's Testimony.

Simmons Liver Regulator has been in use in my family for some time, and I am satisfied it is a valuable addition to the medical science.
J. GILL SHORTER, Governor of Ala.

Hon. Alexander H. Stephens, of Ga., says: Have derived some benefit from the use of Simmons Liver Regulator, and wish to give it a further trial.

"The only Thing that never fails to Relieve."—I have used many remedies for Dyspepsia, Liver Affection and Debility, but never have found anything to benefit me to the extent Simmons Liver Regulator has. I sent from Minnesota to Georgia for it, and would send further for such a medicine, and would advise all who are similarly affected to give it a trial as it seems the only thing that never fails to relieve.
P. M. JANNEY, Minneapolis, Minn.

Dr. T. W. Mason says: From actual experience in the use of Simmons Liver Regulator in my practice I have been and am satisfied to use and prescribe it as a purgative medicine.

AMONG THE THOUSAND ISLANDS.

The misty air like amber seems,
Like melting gold the sky o'erhead.
Athwart the ivory gate of dreams
Surely our bark is piloted.

For this is the enchanted realm,
The fairy-palace reared by sleep;
Through emerald chambers glides our helm,
And in our wake flame-opals leap.

I need but lift my heavy eyes
To South or North, to East or West,
To see, as at my bidding, rise
A wave-charmed island's tufted crest.

Here a tall headland draped with fern,
Pine-crowned and honey-combed with caves;
There, just above the river's urn,
A low, soft nest of grasses waves.

Now narrowing cliffs inclose our prow,
Fantastic rocks streaked blue and rose;
The channel eddies swift,—and now
Broad as the sea the river flows.

Thrilled by the water's long embrace,
The slender silver reeds are stirred,
And sway with slow, voluptuous grace,
Like dancers to a waltz unheard.

There where the crystal floor scarce shines,
So thick the velvet leaves unfold,
Suberb the lily-queen reclines,
A miracle of snow and gold.

Here is Miranda's island—look!
'Twixt tree and cloud still Ariel flies,
Behind the hill, beyond the brook,
The whelp of Sycorax yet lies.

But duke and princes, clown and seer,
Have voyaged forth to other seas,
And fathom deep, since many a year,
Are buried book and wand and keys.

No ribboned grass is floating there,
Along our smooth, pearl-paven path,
But hidden faces' pale green hair
Of nymphs and meraids at the bath.

On! we shall find in sober sooth,
From some clear well-head bubbling up,
The fountain of eternal youth
To brim the thirsty pilgrim's cup.

Enchanted world! enchanted hour!
Hail and farewell, enchanted stream,
That hast the unimagined power
To make the real surpass the dream!

SELECT STORY.

INVITATION TO BREAKFAST.

"Walk out to my house and have breakfast with me some morning." Such was the invitation given to me one day by Mr. Robertson, a genial, middle-aged solicitor to whom I was articled, in the thriving town of Abbeyton.

Now, I had only been articled for a few weeks; and what I had seen of Mr. Robertson in business made me wish to know him and his in their private life; hence I was much delighted to have this opportunity of gratifying my wish. A few days afterward, waking up and finding a glorious summer sun streaming into my room, I speedily decided that this was just the kind of morning on which I should accept the invitation to breakfast at Abbey Grove, and in a few minutes I was on my way thither.

Abbey Grove was situated about two miles from the town, and consisted of a small cluster of villas, built in a prettily situated spot, which, generations ago, had formed part of the grounds of an old abbey. The only remains of this ancient abbey, however, were a few yards of crumbling wall, with here and there vestiges of what at one time had been traceried windows; these, with numerous mounds of stones and masonry, were all that was now left to tell of what had been there centuries ago. Most of these mounds were now covered with grass and shrubs and trees, and thus formed a delightfully secluded retreat, which the inhabitants of Abbey Grove villas enjoyed in common.

The invigorating charms of an early walk on a summer's morning need no description. The pure air, the genial sun, the sparkling dew, and soft low breeze, all tend to exhilarate one's spirits and to make the day pleasanter and happier throughout. All these experiences were mine on the day I write of. As I approached Abbey Grove and saw the houses peeping from out the surrounding trees, I commenced wondering as to what kind of a residence would be occupied by Mr. Robertson, how it would be furnished, what kind of people his wife and family would be like, and the kindred things that you speculate upon when going to visit a house for the first time. Last, but by no means least, as my walk continued, I wondered what kind of a breakfast there would be to appease the appetite stimulated by the breeze.

I walked down the short avenue leading to the houses and then began to wonder which of the half dozen villas I was bound for. This small community dispensed with numbers to their houses, nor did they even distinguish themselves by the ambitious and ridiculous names which you see stuck up on most suburban residences. No; nothing savoring so of the town, for this group of country residences; they all called their several houses by the common name of Abbey Grove, and the stranger had to take his chance of going to each of the houses in turn before he found the particular one sought.

Fortune favored me, however, by sending across my path a traveling directory in the shape of the local milkman; and in response to my inquiry as to which house was Mr. Robertson's, I received the straightforward reply: "This 'ere one as I've jist come from, sir." Walking up the path I found the door invitingly open, and the housemaid putting the finishing touches on the bell handle.

"Master is not down yet, sir," she replied to my inquiry as to whether he was at home, which, considering the time of day, really appeared an absurd question to ask the girl; but we get accustomed to use stereotyped phrases under such circumstances.

"Oh, then, I will come in and wait," I replied.

"What name shall I say, sir?" said the girl.

"Just tell him Mr. Brooks has called, and he will understand."

So saying the girl showed me into a snug little breakfast room, where the sunbeams and the fresh morning air seemed to be vieing with each other as to which should have possession of the room, with such friendly rivalry were they streaming through two wide French windows, which opened upon a tastefully-arranged lawn and flower beds outside. While noticing these things the housemaid had gone up stairs to announce me, when something like the following dialogue ensued:

"Please, ma'am, Mr. Brooks is down stairs."

"Mr. Brooks! Who is he?" was the response, in a muffled female voice.

"I don't know, ma'am," the maid replied. I never seen him before. But he's a young gentleman, and says he'll wait till master comes down."

"Whoever can he be, and what can he want, bothering here, at this time of the day?" continued the muffled voice; and thereupon the door was shut.

Now, this was not exactly pleasant to me, but when I reflected that most probably Mrs. Robertson would be unacquainted with her husband's invitation to me, I thought it best not to be offended; so I commenced examining the pictures on the walls. They were not very interesting, and I soon concluded my inspection, and looked round for something else to occupy the moments, which began to hang rather heavily. The newspaper of the previous day was upon a small table by the window, so I took that up just to pass away the time, and I was soon listlessly perusing the advertisements. I had not been sitting thus above a minute or two when I heard a slight rustling, as of a lady's dress; simultaneously came three or four light footsteps through the window into the room, and before I could look up from my paper, or rise from my seat, a musical voice accosted me with "Good morning, uncle; here is your buttonhole boquet."

I started up in no little surprise at this greeting, which was evidently not intended for me; and there stood before me a fairy-like maiden, of some 16 summers, her brown hair falling loosely from a daintily-shaped head; her cheeks aglow with the healthy morning air she had been enjoying, and deepened, too, by a rosy blush when she discovered her greeting had been unwittingly addressed to a stranger. She was standing before me, holding out the little knot of flowers destined for her uncle's buttonhole—how I envied her uncle!—a very picture of health and life and happiness and beauty. Her expression of unrestrained enjoyment had changed in a moment to one of embarrassment and dismay, mingled with a gleam of amusement in her bright eyes as the humor of the awkard situation we were in broke upon her. An instantaneous mutual agreement seemed to flash between us. We both broke into a merry little laugh; and I have often wondered what would have happened if we had not adopted this course, if for instance, the young lady had passed on with a dignified coldness, and simple apologies and bows and passed between us! Our sudden introduction was, however, not destined to have this sudden ending. In a few moments we were chatting away like old friends. I fancied my fairy seemed to be actually pleased when I announced that I was going to stay for breakfast; and I had almost summoned up courage to ask her to present me in reality with the flowers she had undesignedly offered to me, when the entrance of the servant with the completing dishes for the breakfast table served an excuse for her to leave the room.

She had scarcely gone through the door, when I heard again the greeting, "Good morning, uncle," followed this time by an unmistakable sound, which made me long more than ever to be that girl's uncle! The door opened once more. I stepped forward to meet my employer, but suddenly paused as a tall gentleman entered the room whom I had never seen before in my life.

He stood looking inquiringly at me after a sharp "Good morning." I was too embarrassed to make any response. My first thought was: "He is some visitor," but in a few moments the awful truth dawned across my mind, that this was in reality the owner of the house I was in, and that by some means or other I had got into the wrong one. The situation was tremendous. I am naturally a cool character, but I was so taken by surprise and chagrin, that I could only mutter some confused apology about having been invited to breakfast by Mr. Robertson; that I had been directed to this house by some miserable misunderstanding; that I humbly apologized for my intrusion, and hoped he would pardon it. So speaking, I made a frantic dash at my hat, maddened at my stupidity, at the loss of my breakfast, and still more at the thought of never seeing or speaking again to that charming little lady, who, in less than five minutes, I found I was absurdly in love with.

I said a hurried "good morning," and was trying to make a ghastly attempt at a smile as I left the room—when, would you believe it? that tall, dark man burst out into a loud laugh. I felt ready to knock him down. I knew how my stupidity would be gaily discussed at that breakfast table before her, and I felt my discomfiture and humiliation deeply; but this open merriment at my expense maddened me.

A strange calm succeeded this storm. It was caused by some words uttered by my tormentor. "You really must forgive; I could not refrain from laughing. My name is Robinson. Your friend Mr. Robertson lives in one of the other houses. We frequently get parcels and letters, and even calls, coming to the wrong house; but in my experience we have never had so amusing a mistake so early in the day as this one.

Now this explanation toned down my anger considerably; but the words which followed were like balm to my troubled heart: "Mr. Robertson will have finished breakfast by now. I cannot think of allowing you to go. Do me the favor of remaining here and breakfasting with us this morning." So saying he took my hat out of my hand and led me in the room again. Of course he did not need much persuasion to make me stop. Two minutes before I had been ready to knock this man over; I now thought him the most kind and considerate fellow in the world.

Of course the breakfast was delightful. I found Mr. Robinson and his wife sensible, genial, kindhearted people. I found their niece even more sensible, more genial and more kind-hearted than they were; and when after breakfast, I accompanied her and Mr. Robinson into their pretty flower garden, I received from her a rosebud for my buttonhole, which I kept for some years afterward. When saying good-bye I was perplexed by thinking how I should manage to see her again; it must be contrived somehow, I mentally resolved. Upon returning to town I lost no time in explaining "the situation" to my worthy employer, Mr. Robertson, who rallied me good naturedly upon the mistake, and upon what the consequences might be! Next week I was invited to a pic-nic at Mr. Robinson's and went not only to it, but likewise to Mr. Robinson's house again and again before his niece returned to her home.

Four years have passed since that invitation to breakfast was given me; and that "fairylike girl" is now my wife. The local milkman, bless him, got a handsome "tip" upon our wedding day.

Railroad Tickets.

There are less than half-a-dozen railway ticket manufacturing establishments in the United Stats, and one of the largest and most successful of these is in Boston. Few people have any idea of the dimensions to which the business has grown, the capital and labor required to answer its demands, the exquisitely fine machinery necessary in the manufacture, or the skill and ability indispensable to its management. In the matter of local tickets alone the consumption is enormous, and the variety in manufacture all but infinite. The number of local tickets made by the Boston concern alone last year amounted to 17,000,000. The Eastern Railroad has on its main line and branches between its termini, Boston and Portland, ninety-eight stations. A complete set of local tickets requires not only that there shall be tickets sold in the Boston depot for every one of these outer stations, and in the Portland depot correspondingly for the other stations the other way, but that a ticket form shall exist, and tickets be constantly on hand at every station for every other on the line. The number for the Eastern amounts to about 4,400. Now remember that these printers make local tickets for every New England line, and many of those of Canada also, as well as some famous lines and systems in the West and South, and that they have constantly to carry stock for all of them, so that at any hour of any day they are prepared to fill an order for tickets, combination or local, and the business receives some illustration. No two of these local ticket forms are alike in colors and their arrangement. Of the 4,400 different local tickets in use on the Eastern no two are alike, and the same is true of all roads; nor are the same combinations repeated from one road to another. When a conductor fixes his eyes upon a ticket in the custody of a passenger and takes in its form and arrangements of colors, the glance shows him where the passenger is going, or at least the exact point to which he is ticketed; and that ordinarily is all the conductor cares to know, it being a matter entirely without his interest where the passenger came from or boarded his train, provided he has a ticket.—Boston Herald.

The Masher Mashed.

There were plenty of seats in the car, but as he walked down the aisle he looked sharply to the right and left until he reached a pretty girl who was sitting alone.

"Seat engaged, Miss?" he asked with a knowing wink.

"No-no sir," stammered the girl looking around in dismay.

Down he plunged and braced himself for the campaign. He was a regular passenger, and held his commutation ticket in his hand.

"Shall I open—!"

"Tickets!" roared the conductor, who had watched him from afar.

The regular passenger smiled sweetly on the pretty girl and put out his paste-board, out of which two sides were promptly nipped.

"Tickets!"

"Hold on!" protested the regular passenger; "you punched th's twice. This lady isn't with me!"

"Sorry," replied the conductor; "but you walked in, sat down and went to work on the regular married style. Supposed, of course, it was your wife. Too late now. Take a vacant seat next time. Tickets!"

And the passengers went to the conductor and asked him to drink and offered him cigars, and bought out the train boy for him.

"I knew they weren't married," said he, as he squinted at a flask of extra prime. "I've seen him before, but this is the first time it cost him a couple of dollars to play it."

"Do you know who the lady is?" asked an inquisitive man.

"My wife, gentlemen," replied the conductor, and even the flask chuckled a merry "glug glug" as he spoke.

Sugar From Sugar Cane.

From this source wonders have been expected in the United States since 1751, when it was first introduced into Louisiana. The yearly results, as to sugar yield, however, have been steadily on the decline, and many of the sugar lands were, in 1874, turned into rice-fields. What was in years gone by obtained in Louisiana is not again to be hoped for many years to come. Such being the case, other Southern States have been suggested and tried; they give, in many respects, fair results, but whatever these have thus far been, they are so insignificant when compared with our total consumption of sugar that they can hardly be considered. But many argue that the time will come when Texas alone will grow sufficient cane to supply the entire North with sugar. Is this period near at hand? We think not, and trust that our people will realize the same. We doubt if the lands, for example of Louisiana, will be in a proper state for cane cultivation for hundreds of years to come. They, unfortunately, nearly all are subjected to a continual overflow; these were partly protected before the war by jetties, but the latter have since been destroyed, and to restore them to the proper state would necessitate a government expense of millions of dollars; and local State taxation would be of little help, as the amount required is beyond the purse of the few.—The Sugar Beet.

News from the Moon.

The telescope has lately revealed some very curious and startling appearances in the moon. Astronomers have been slow to accept the conclusions which these observations suggest, because they have so long believed that the moon is a dead planet and incapable of supporting any life upon its surface. This belief is based principally upon the assumed absence of a lunar atmosphere. But these recent observations indicate that the moon has an atmosphere, and, if it has an atmosphere, it may have various forms of life upon its surface differing as much from those upon the earth as the moon itself differs from the earth in its geological and climatogical features. It would be very curious if the telescope, the instrument which has banished from the moon the hosts of strange creatures with which the imagination of some of the ancients peopled it, and shown how unfitted it is for the habitation of beings like ourselves and those we see around us, should now make us believe that the moon is the home of beings more grotesque in our eyes, perhaps, than any the imagination has pictured. We do not say this is probable, but only that it is suggested by the very interesting observations which have lately been made, and we shall briefly describe.

On the 27th of March last Mr. Stanley Williams, an English observer, was looking at the moon in the early evening with a telescope of considerable power, and giving particular attention to that very singular oval valley known to astronomers by the name of Plato. This valley is about sixty miles broad, remarkably level, and surrounded by a ring of mountains averaging something less than 4,000 feet high, but shooting up here and there into peaks nearly as high as Ætna. When the sunlight strikes across the summits of the mountains on one side it throws the shining peaks into splendid relief, but all the valley within remains shrouded in darkness. The sun was just rising upon this mountain ring when Mr. Williams made his observation of Plato, and his eye at once detected a strange appearance. The interior of the valley, which usually appears totally dark at such times, was illuminated with a faint phosphorescent light, making its level floor dimly visible. It was not the effect of reflection from the illuminated mountains, because the interior of the valley was protected from such reflection. Some passing clouds in our atmosphere shut out this interesting scene from the sight of the observer for about an hour. When the sky cleared again, Mr. Williams looked once more, and saw that the strange light had disappeared. Mr. Williams had made a similar observation, in the same spot, about five years ago.

About seven weeks after Mr. William's observation which we have described, there was a total eclipse of the sun, and a party of French and English astronomers went to Egypt to observe it, as the line of totality ran across that country. When these astronomers turned their spectroscopes upon the edge of the moon as it hid the sun on the 17th of May they perceived indications, in the strengthening of certain lines of the spectrum, of the existence of an atmosphere on the moon. This observation, though not unprecedented, was hailed with satisfaction by those who had always contended that the moon was not as dead as it seemed. The existence of an atmosphere would explain the phenomenon which Mr. Williams witnessed in the valley of Plato, as well as various other equally singular observations which have been made by students of the moon from time to time.

But this was not all. On the 19th of May, two days after the eclipse, John G. Jackson of Delaware, while studying the moon, as he had been accustomed to do for years, with a reflecting telescope, was surprised to see near the western edge of the disk, and over a portion of the flat region known as the Sea of Crises, something which he described as a feathery-looking cloud. Just two months later he saw a similar appearance in the same place. And now Mr. L. E. Trouvelot, a well-known astronomer, commenting upon Stanley Williams' observation, says that he has more than once witnessed similar appearances upon the moon's disk. He has seen lunar landscapes lose their distinctness as if thin clouds were floating over them, and once, around the crater of Kant, he saw what may have been a rare vapor slightly tinged with purple. He has also seen another large crater illuminated with a faint purple light. Mr. Trouvelot thinks these various appearances are manifestations of a lunar atmosphere of a nature yet unknown.

Curious observations of a similar nature can be found scattered here and there in astronomical records reaching back more than a century, but they have generally been looked upon with distrust or totally disregarded. These recent observations give them renewed interest and tend to vindicate their correctness. If it can be shown that the moon has an atmosphere, Sir William Herschel's idea that our satellite is inhabitable will not be deemed so ridiculous as it has seemed to some modern astronomers. We should not expect to obtain any confirmation of the observations of the German telescopist who believed he had discovered a big city and great military works in the moon, but reasons might be shown for thinking that the moon supports life peculiar to itself. The mere possibility of such a thing is somewhat startling, for the moon is really a very near neighbor to the earth. Few, perhaps, realize how close we are to another world besides the earth, but it is a very narrow span of space that separates us from the moon. The mean distance is only 240,000 miles, or less than ten times the circuit of the earth, and only about eighty times as far as from here to San Francisco. Not a few sea captains have probably sailed as far as the distance from the earth to the moon. And yet so close at hand as this there is a world differing so widely from the one we dwell upon that we can only admit the possibility of its being inhabited by assuming that its inhabitants are as unlike ourselves as their world is unlike ours.—*N. ### Items.

Square and V-shaped bodices are the most popular for evening toilets.

A lady should always be neat enough to receive visitors without detaining them to dress.

On black costumes embroidery and laces strive for prominence, and ladies will not err in choosing either.

A lady may have a coquettish little way of putting her hat slightly to one side, but this only proves that she is womanly.

The English walking hat in fine felt has just enough of crown not to look too masculine, and the roll of the brim is jaunty in the extreme.

A brown felt, trimmed with a broad velvet band, steel buckle in front and cluster of finely colored feathers on the side, is very stylish.

The Prince Albert coat is among the newest styles for winter wear. It is shaped a good deal like the men's coat of the same name, and may be made up either in light cloth, or velvet.

Hosiery decoration is now among the many employments of fashionable artistic ladies. Lovers of art needlework have transferred their enthusiasm from lambrequins and sofa pillows to their own pretty silk stockings.

Judges of the Supreme Court in Arkansas prohibit by formal orders the sale of liquors within a distance of three miles from a public or private school.

Ysleta, Tex., claims to be the oldest town in the United States. When a Spanish explorer, Coronado, discovered the place in 1540 he found there a populous and prosperous Indian community.

A family has distinguished itself at La Porte, Ind., by piecing three gorgeous bedquilts from samples of silk obtained free by mail from merchants in the large cities.

As an evidence of the business boom in Dakota, it is reported that over a mile of freight cars are daily standing on the side tracks in Pierre awaiting their turn to be unloaded.

A species of cactus is made useful in Florida. The strong fibre of its leaves is turned into rope, its juice into a pleasant beverage, and its trunk, after the removal of the pitch, into pails.

Soutaché braid, in carefully selected tints, is arranged in shaded lines, row above row, and closely placed upon the hems of cloth skirts, about the wrists and on vests.

One of the most jaunty trimmings for either bonnets or hats is the new bouquet pompons, each about the size of a plum, glossy and smooth shaven and exquisite in color. Pretty little capote bonnets are set off with a cluster of rose-colored pompons.

The colored laces now coming into fashion will be found very desirable in renewing black silks that have seen service, for they avoid the startling contrast of new and old black, and really make the old look new by their difference in tone.

The earliest engagement ring was called the "grimmal," and consisted of two hoops of gold, or sometimes one of gold and the other of silver joined together. A ring set with a large pearl or solitaire diamond is now considered the most to be desired.

The Latest Returns.

The Patriot of Nov. 9th says:

The political tidal wave which swept over the country on Tuesday has completely engulfed the Republican party. The democratic state ticket in this state is elected by enormous pluralities, which range from 36,000 to 42,000. The lower house of the legislature is also democratic, while the Republican majority in the senate has been reduced. Thirteen of the twenty-eight congressmen are democrats, several districts having chosen Republicans by very slight pluralities.

The unprecedented majority for the democratic ticket in the state at New York has grown to the immense figure of 175,000. Indiana wheels into line once more, Michigan deserts machine Republicanism, California and Nevada take their places in the democratic column, Colorado joins the victorious procession, Kansas repudiates her sumptuary law governor, Connecticut returns to the fold, New Jersey is true as ever, Massachusetts elects the head of the democratic state ticket and the next congress will be democratic by a good working majority in spite of Hubbell's corruption fund and the agitation of the tariff question. The result is far better than was hoped or expected.

THE LAST PULL.

The campaign closed in good time for the stalwarts. They spent several hundred thousands of dollars and then their coffers ran dry. As it was necessary to have more "grease" to keep the machine moving a few days longer, Senator J. D. Cameron last week went to New York and returned on Friday morning bringing with him $60,000, the fruits of a day's solicitation of campaign money among the wealthy Stalwarts of Gotham. The amount is just $100,000 less than he expected to raise, but campaign collectors are not liberally rewarded this year anywhere, and the Pennsylvania boss did comparatively well. The arguments he advanced to induce contributors to be liberal were as singular as they were forcible. In representing the case to several gentlemen the Senator said:

"New York is irretrievably lost, and money spent in an effort to save Folger is ammunition wasted. Unless funds are forthcoming Pennsylvania is also hopelessly gone. If, however, sufficient money is raised, Pennsylvania can be saved, and, thus preserved, will form a nucleus around which to build a Stalwart organization in 1884. If Pennsylvania goes, the Administration party is stranded, and the first duty of every Stalwart is obviously to look out for Pennsylvania. If Beaver's election is secured, I will take care of 1884."

Thus appealed to, the amount specified was secured, and the Senator returned to his own dominion with what comfort less than half a loaf affords.

Geo. H. Post the Democratic candidate for Congress in the Bradford district is elected.

The State legislature is Democratic on joint ballot.

ANOTHER REPUBLICAN EXPOSURE.

General W. H. McCartney of Wilkesbarre has been doing some very effective work for Stewart during the campaign, on the stump all over the state. He is, and always has been, a republican, and has bowed in quiet submission to the machine until now. As soon as he went back on Cameron the Harrisburg Telegraph woke up to the fact that in 1869 McCartney was a revenue collector in Massachusetts, and that he was a defaulter for a large amount, which has never been paid to the government. If these developments continue it will soon be impossible to find an honest man in the republican party, if the tales they are telling of each other be true.

THE RESULT OF LAST TUESDAY.

We have met the enemy, and are not theirs by a large majority. Several years ago the COLUMBIAN propounded the conundrum as to how long the people of Pennsylvania would continue to submit to the Cameron dominion, and predicted that one of these days there would be an uprising that would surprise the bosses, and cast them headlong from their thrones. That day came last Tuesday. The people, the sovereigns of the state, revolted at the methods of modern Republicanism, and struck a blow at the Bosses, the spoils system, and political assessment robbery, that indicates most emphatically they have had enough of them, and the majorities were made so overwhelming that the leaders of the so-called "Grand old Party" will not be likely to resort to them again. It is not only in Pennsylvania that the whirlwind has swept, but in New York, New Hampshire, Connecticut, Massachusetts, and in fact over the entire nation where elections were held, with the exception of Nebraska, which gives a Republican majority of 15,000, the only consolation left to the Stalwarts of all the vast domain wherein they have ruled so despotically, by the force of money. The lesson of Tuesday teaches that there is such a thing as going too far, that the people are the masters, and not the servants, of office holders. It is a rebuke to such men as Arthur, the New York pot house politician, whose unfitness for the high office he now disgraces is acknowledged all over the land, the man who was put in the Presidential chair by the bullet of an assassin and began his administration by turning out competent officers to make way for his placemen and political tools; to Cameron who for years has debauched this state with money, and who frustrated the will of a majority of the Republicans of the state, by buying James A. Beaver's vote for Grant for a third term at Chicago, with a promise to make him governor; to Beaver who might have been the choice of his party for the office, but for this bargain; and to all the henchmen who have so abjectly served their master for so many years in order to maintain their hold upon the public pap.

The Democrats have been given control of many of the state governments and have secured a clear majority in Congress. Let us take care that the trust imposed upon us is so administered that we shall not reap the whirlwind ourselves, and in a few years be ousted by the same force that has just ejected the rotten carcass of stalwart Republicanism, the people. A wise course will secure us the Presidency in 1884, but if there are any blunders the public confidence will be lost, and our chances greatly diminished. There are lessons for everybody in the result of last Tuesday.

THE NEW YORK TABLET.

As we predicted last week, there were sent to a large number of Irish Catholics through the state, the circular copied from the New York Tablet. These circulars were sent out by the Republican State Committee. Although the election is over, it is not too late to expose the means to which the Stalwarts resorted in their desperation. In order to show what kind of a sheet the Tablet is we publish the following editorial from the Freeman's Journal, one of the oldest, ablest and most popular Catholic journals in this country:

The issue in Pennsylvania is a very clear one. It is: Can Cameron, with the millionaires leagued with him, BUY UP the vote of Pennsylvania! We wish we could feel more secure of the issue than we do! We own some fear that there may be voters, sold and delivered, against their true interests, by accursed secret societies.

We are told that, notwithstanding the exposure of the shallow plot, there is still existing an intention, in some of the mining regions, of flinging broadcast among the least instructed, copies of the sheet called the New York Tablet, filled with calumnies, or the more sneaking method of insinuations, regarding Mr. Robert E. Pattison, the Democratic candidate for Governor of Pennsylvania.

Infamous falsehoods have been uttered regarding this gentleman, representing him as a bigot. His life-record gives the lie to the calumny. A generous and honorable gentleman, he has never shown any discrimination for or against men on account of their race or their religion. His record, in the high local office he holds, is a sufficient denial of the calumny. Men of Irish names and blood, and of the Catholic religion, have been, even oftensively, paraded in Philadelphia papers as holding important positions of profit and trust under him. We doubt not that these men, Irish in name and Catholic in religion, have been appointed for their several, personal, merits,—and not otherwise. God forbid! That settles the slander on Mr. Pattison, running for Governor of Pennsylvania, against the most desperate efforts of the Cameronian monopolists,—lavishing their money.

The New York Tablet, which sheet is said to be intended to be used for circulating falsehoods about Mr. Pattison, was, till lately, the property of Mr. Denis Sadlier & Co.—a book binding, and, we think, printing establishment, engaged in selling school-books, stationery, etc., to poor school managers; and issuing the Tablet, in the shape of a newspaper,—hiring this one or that one for editor,—as an advertising sheet of the concern.

On hearing of the proposed attempt to use this sheet for so dishonorable a purpose, we sent to the American News company to get some late copies of it,—as we hardly ever see it, and it was not on sale on New York city news stands. We find its number for October 21 is sued as: "Published weekly by D. & J. Sadlier." The number of this sheet dated October 28 comes out as: "Published every Tuesday morning by Michael Kerwin, publisher and manager." Inquiry made, we find as certain, and so publish, that this Michael Kerwin, to us unknown,—is now, or was lately, a clerk in the New York post office.

For any respectable citizen of New York, that has known there was a paper called the New York Tablet, it is not necessary to do more than name it.

GOV. HOYT'S LETTER.

A bomb was thrown into the stalwart camp last week Friday, by the publication of a letter from Governor Hoyt, in which he declared for Stewart. When a man who was made what he is today by the Cameron machine is obliged to denounce the very methods that put him in the executive chair of the state, then indeed has his party fallen low. Here is the letter;

HARRISBURG, Pa., November 3.—To Wharton Barker, Esq., Philadelphia: Adhering to the accepted traditions of our people, I must decline, while holding a public office, essentially non-partisan, to take any part in a distinctive political meeting. This point of propriety, which need not be urged, will forbid my acceptance of your invitation to preside over the assembly of independent republicans at Horticultural hall to night.

If I understand the object of this gathering of careful and judicious citizens, it is to give effect to certain convictions affecting the political welfare of the state. It is the assertion of the inherent right of the freemen of the republic to declare the proper aims and ends of public conduct, and to proclaim their own motives and purposes. This right inheres in every individual and every assembly. A political party is a voluntary association, and in no sense does its right to exist depend upon its numerical size or upon the accident of its itcluding the mere brute force of a "majority."

When standing room is no longer allowed to members of the political party with a margin for self respect; when its lines become simply coterminus with the limits of the usurping dynasty; when in all the space between abject submission and rebellion, no place is given for appeal, argument or protest, revolution is an appropriate remedy. All proud and generous minds will resist the imposition of serfdom, and will leave to "villeins" and retainers their badge of servitude to the intruding feudal system. Any characterization of those engaged in this movement which flippantly classes them as "sore heads" and "kickers," mistakes the rating of Pennsylvania manhood. There is an undeniable justification for your uprising. Its grounds are open and plain to the people whether accepted or not.

This the tens of thousands of the best instructed, most conscientious and spirited citizens who have joined in this method of uprooting palpable public wrongs, attest; other tens of thousands of such citizens sympathize with you and only doubt whether your heroic surgery is the best treatment. For myself I had not seen my way clear to act with you. I had expected to drift along giving the republican ticket a formal support, and have done so. I have to friends maintained that attitude until now. At this late day I am fully advised of the methods of vengeance being contrived for those now considered in revolt; some of these rebels, nay most of them, are among the most courageous spirits in the state. They know the humiliation it costs proud men to have masters; their moral power crushed out in repeated calls to surrender to the gross demands of those who only see in party success the means of patronage-distribution, and that made in the interest of personal power.

When I reflect upon the humiliation put upon myself as Chief Magistrate for resisting some of the purposes of the irksome domination which puts politics above administrative propriety, and when I reflect upon the force of the insulting methods applied to myself by means of threats, intrigue, and bad faith, I realize some of Cardinal Woolsey's regrets that he "had only served his God with half the zeal he had his King."

In the name of decency and in behalf of my successor I wish to emphasize the curse of the whole business, and sound a note of warning to the whole people. Self respect compels me to this avowal. Nor will peace and reform ever come until the moral forces in politics which you have organized prevail. If their courage be added to their conviction, the masses of voters will promptly rally to your standards and aid you to an overwhelming success; and such is the duty of the voters of Pennsylvania. The logic of the situation which confronts you, and which confronts the electors of the state, demands a speedy decision and final result. With such a triumphant outcome the republican voters at least will have rescued their party from present peril and from future outrages. Thus, no revenges will be left outstanding, for no revenges will be possible. Brutal schemes of slaughter, now contemplated, will be abandoned, and the factonal stiletto and guillotine, now prepared for "bolters" and "rebels," will not be put to their intended use.

In the future the halls of the Lochiel House, at Harrisburg, will no longer resound with the tread of claquers hastily sent to summon self-respecting and honorable delegates of the people to "slated" tickets and pre-arranged programmes, threatened with ostracism in case of non compliance, or sent home dishonored to face the angry constituents whom they have betrayed, and thus will be dethroned the power before which have been compelled to bow all who have sought honors or promotion at the hand of republican constituencies. With your ultimate success will have been made an exhibition of moral courage in our state, and the reaping of beneficial results from peaceful methods, which shall more grandly than ever demonstrate the capacity of the people for self-government. In making this declaration I have no disposition to disavow any share I individually may have had in the partisan methods against which the independent movement is not only a revolt, but a revolution. I am simply conscious that I utter thoughts and feelings which stir to their depths the minds and hearts of thousands in this great commonwealth.

(Signed) HENRY. M. HOYT

The Star Route Cases.

The Government is quietly preparing for the second trial of the star route cases and expects to go on promptly when the case is called. It is apprehended, however, that the defense will urge delay so as to throw the case over to another term of court in order to have it tried by another judge. It is not probable that George Bliss will appear at the second trial. Messrs. Merrick and Ker are, however, expected to assist the department of justice as heretofore. Mr. Meraick says he is hopeful of securing the presence of ex-Senator Spencer at the second trial, as a subpœna has recenntly been served upon him. The government has come into possession of some important new evidence, but unfortunately most of it bears on cases which were r lest to arbitration.

Governor Hoyt's letter, which we print in another column, was received by the Stalwarts as a bitter pill, and in order to counteract its effect, Stalwart speakers in Dauphin county charged that Hoyt had lost $158,000 of the State's money in speculation, and Cameron and his friends made it up for him. Hoyt promptly denied the story, and M. S. Quay, corroborated him. If it were true what a spectacle it would present! The Stalwarts for several weeks attempted to punch Hoyt out of his hole, and make him deeare for Beaver. He kept silence as long as he could, but was finally forced to speak out, and in his manly and forcible letter, declare for Stewart. No sooner done, than the same gang suddenly discover him to be a defaulter, a liar, and several other bad things, and admit that they knew all about it some time since. If the Republican family fight continues much longer, their own testimony against each other will show the people what kind of men they have kept in place in the state for the past twenty years.

Secretary Quay sent his resignation to Gov. Hoyt as soon as he read Hoyt's letter. Great Cæsar! Is it possible that this great statesman, and machine manipulator is willing to let the commonwealth go to the bow-wows!

A large meeting of Democrats was held at the school house in Buckhorn last Friday night. Speeches were made by B. F. Zarr and J. K. Bittenbender.

The lateness of some of the returns and the unusual size of the table of votes prevented us from making the mails on Thursday afternoon.

Miss Alice McDowell of Lightstreet, was married on Thursday evening to a gentleman from Williamsport. There was a large number of invited guests present.

The Democrats of Catawissa held a ratification meeting on Wednesday evening. The Band was in the procession, banner and torches were borne, and W. H. Rhawn Esq., made a few well timed remarks in front of Kistler's hotel.

Joseph Clewell, an old resident of Catawissa township, while attempting to cross the P & R railroad on Wednesday afternoon, was struck by a locomotive, one horse was killed, and he was injured so that he died about four hours after the accident.

Lying circulars stuck up after dark on the eve of an election are a cowardly method that no man who has any self respect for himself, or reputation to sustain will be guilty of. If he is in the right he will not fear to act in the broad light of the sun.

The Band was out on Wednesday evening, under the lead of Chairman Buckingham and Secretary Kleim, and serenaded many of our leading Democratic citizens. Short speeches were made by Col. Freeze, and C. G. Barkley, Esq.

The marriage of Mr. M. S. Shipley of Cincinnati, and Miss Annie M. Neal, daughter of William Neal, took place on Thursday, November 9th, at one o'clock, at the residence of the bride's parents on Market street, in the presence of many relatives and friends.

For forty-seven years Mr. H. Owen has noted the lowest mark attained by the water in the river and now finds it a little lower than at any time since 1885. Until this year it reached its lowest mark in 1879. Those who have been guessing at the matter can now take this as correct.—Berwick Gazette.

A Musical Convention under the leadership of Prof. A. N. Johnson of New York, will be opened in Knorr & Wintersteen's Hall Monday evening, November 13, 1882, to continue two weeks, evening sessions only. Tuition for the term $1.00. All lovers of vocal music should not fail to attend this excellent drill. 2w

The proper time to make a fight against a candidate for office is at the delegate election. The vote last Tuesday shows that the Democrats of this county cannot be swayed from the ticket by a man who was fairly beaten in the convention, assisted by a lot of young Republicans, whose only object was to defeat one of the regular nominees. Forty-eight hours is too short a time to spring a trap, and Sunday work does not take in this county.

The Nanticoke Chronicle publishes the following: The track laying on the North and West Branch Railroad will be completed between this place and Wilkesbarre this week, completing the road between that city and Catawissa, where it connects with the S. H. & W. The hands have been working day and night for the last two weeks which accounts for the recent comparatively rapid track laying. How soon regular trains will be run over the road is not known, but it is expected about November 15th.

We call the attention of our readers to the advertisement of "Pool's Signal Service Barometer," in another column. It combines with an excellent Thermometer, a Storm Glass or Weather Indicator, of surprising accuracy, rendering it an article of great value to the farmer, and to all others who feel an interest in the important question, "What will the weather be to-morrow?" Beware of worthless imitations. None genuine without the signature of J. A. Pool on the back of each instrument. See advertisement.

The performance of Leavitt's Gigantean Minstrels at the Opera House last night was one of the best in the line that has ever been given there. Nearly all the troupe were new to our city, but they will leave behind an excellent reputation. Where all were so good it is impossible to particularize any individual. The orchestra especially was very fine, and the music alone was a feature of the entertainment. The company was attired in handsome uniforms, something entirely new in this line. Nearly every piece on the programme was doubly encored. There is no better troupe travelling, and the large audience went away delighted. We hope they will soon come again.

Amongst the more prominent indications of the growing wealth and luxury of the United States, may be cited the rapidly increasing demand for diamonds on the other side of the Atlantic. It is now a recognised fact that only the finest stones, perfect in water, in color, and in form, find acceptation with American buyers. The exportation not only of diamonds but of rubies, sapphires, and pearls to the United States has gone on in a steadily ascending ratio for some years past. This year the largest invoice of precious stones ever forwarded to that country, has been shipped within the last few weeks to a prominent Philadelphia house of long standing, that of Messrs. Bailey, Banks and Biddle. In this collection was included a number of very rare and unique gems and pearls, such as two sapphires of singular hue, a black pearl of abnormal size and remarkable coloring, and several other beautiful and curious jewels. Continental Gazette (Paris)

In the campaign that has just closed, much credit is due Robert Buckingham, chairman of the Democratic standing Committee, for the very efficient manner in which he performed the duties of his office. For more than two months he has given his time and labor in seeing that the organization of the party was perfect. But very few Democrats in the county were allowed to neglect the registration of their names and the payment of taxes, and those who failed in this, did so through their own neglect. Meetings were held in every township, and speakers provided for the occasions, none of whom failed to keep their appointments except on two or three evenings when they were prevented by storms. In C. A. Kleim, secretary of the standing Committee, Mr. Buckingham had an efficient assistant, and much valuable aid was rendered by many of the young Democrats as well as the older ones. The several committeemen in the townships, with but few exceptions, followed out the instructions of the chairman carefully, and to the efforts of all these, the very satisfactory result in the county is attributable

A Queer Occurrence.

Cosmus Eckenrode, who lives in the Blue Mountain near the line of Berks and Schuylkill, was out hunting on Monday last. As he was crossing a small clearing he laid down his gun for a while, to gather some Blue Mountain tea. Shortly after he picked it up again, he was startled to hear very close to his ear the peculiar whirring which is the signal of the proximity of a rattlesnake. He looked hastily around, but could see nothing, when suddenly he discovered the tail of the reptile protruding from the muzzle of the gun. He dropped the gun quickly, but instead of coming out his snakeship crawled into the barrel again. After fruitless efforts to dislodge him, Mr. Eckenrode resolved to fire the gun, which was loaded with powder and shot. This plan was very successful and the snake, after taking a trip in the air, came down in shreds, a badly used up snake.—Pottsville Chronicle.

Thanksgiving Day.

Governor Hoyt has issued the following proclamation authorizing Thursday, November 30, to be observed as a day of Thanksgiving by the people of the state:

"In common with the inhabitants of all the land, the people have just cause for thankfulness to Almighty God for the manifold material, intellectual and spiritual fruits and increase of the year: Now, therefore, I Henry M. Hoyt, governor of Pennsylvania, do ordain and appoint Thursday the thirtieth day of November, A. D. 1882, as recommended by the president of the United States, a day of thanksgiving and prayer, to the end that the citizens of the commonwealth, of every race, creed and condition, together with the wayfarer and sojourner therein, may gather at the altar and the hearth to give thanks to God; to implore a continuance of his favor; to renew and strengthen in kindness of heart and act, social and domestic ties, and to set apart out of the abundance of the year, one day as a sign and covenant of their faith and hope and love."

The Election in Town.

A good deal of interest was manifested in the town on Tuesday over the election. The Stalwarts were evidently demoralized and their best workers were not at the polls any longer than was necessary for them to vote. Everything passed off quietly. After the polls closed groups stood about the streets and hotels waiting to hear the returns. At the Republican office all was dark. There did not appear to be any Stalwart headquarters. The COLUMBIAN office was crowded with Democrats from nine o'clock in the evening until two in the morning, and as each dispatch was sent in from the telegraph office showing gains everywhere, pleasant smiles wreathed the countenances of the crowd, and occasionally a burst of laughter followed the reading of the message. For the first time in many years the laugh was on our side, and it was fully appreciated. At two o'clock the wires said that the whole democratic state ticket was elected by an overwhelming majority, and as this was considered good enough to go to bed on, the headquarters were abandoned.

Surprise Party.

Wednesday, November 1st, was a gala day at the residence of ex-Judge Derr of Jackson township. The Judge being somewhat indisposed in the morning, had retired for a little while when to his surprise he was awakened by an advance guard of his neighbors and friends, and before he had fully recovered from his first surprise the skirmish line closed in on him until between eighty-five and ninety of them surrounded him and his better half, and after a general shaking of hands and exchanging of courtesies, the ladies present prepared a bountiful repast for all present and to say that they all did justice to themselves would not be saying enough, (your contributor included.) After dinner was over, the Judge was made the recipient of a pair of gold spectacles, on behalf of his sons and daughters present, the presentation speech being made by John F. Derr, Esq., in a few well-timed remarks.

The occasion was all that could be wished for in point of enjoyment. The sun came out in the morning like a May sun, and everything passed off quietly and to the entire satisfaction of all present. Not a jar of any description occurred to mar the pleasure of any one. SCRIBE.

Espy Items.

The election passed over very quietly and nothing unusual occurred.

Twenty-four hands were discharged from the boat-yard last week, and the indications are that more will be suspended shortly.

Rev. Mr. Remer has been holding a series of protracted meetings during the past week.

Dr. Harter has purchased the John Shuman farm.

Mr. Rutledge intends building a new house before Spring.

"Dave" has kindly consented to give the Republicans a free ride up the river, and will have his hands full as the crowd will be very great; we think he may be compelled to charter several boats to accommodate all. He will have a good crew, consisting of "Grandpap" who is an experienced pilot and will take the helm, and "Barney" who will act as steward and also have charge of the Greenback delegation.

The artist has been at work again making illustrations of roosters; perhaps he had better let some one else do that.

John Milnes knowing that the tide of travel up Salt River by the Republicans, would be so great as to make it almost impossible to secure a berth, purchased a pair of ponies and will make the trip in his own conveyance. CUL.

Warren J. Buckalew.

Just as we went to press last week the sad intelligence reached us that Warren J. Buckalew had breathed his last. For some months his health had been failing, and for about four weeks previous to his death he was confined to his bed. He leaves a wife and infant son. His age was about 33 years. At a meeting of the Bar Association on Saturday last, the president, Col. J. G. Freeze, stated the object of the meeting. Col. Freeze, Col. Knorr, P. E. Wirt, W. H. Rhawn and C. B. Jackson Esqs., were appointed a committee to draft resolutions, and reported as follows:

Resolved. That we deeply regret the early death of our late associate, Warren J. Buckalew, a gentleman of genial manners, of literary tastes and well versed in the learning of his profession.

Resolved. That the Bar designate of its members John M. Clark, Robert R. Little, T. J. Vanderslice, Jacob H. Maize, C. W. Miller and F. P. Billmeyer as bearers; and that we attend the funeral in a body.

Resolved. That we tender to the family of our late fellow member of the Bar, the assurances of our heartfelt sympathy in the loss they have sustained in this bereavement.

Resolved. That a copy of these proceedings be transmitted to Hon. Charles R. Buckalew, and to Mrs. Warren J. Buckalew.

The interment took place at Rosemont cemetery on Saturday afternoon at two o'clock.

Thousands of families have had occasion to try the never failing qualities of Dr. Bull's cough syrup, and they all unite in the praise of this wonderful prescription.

The Disappointed Candidate.

The candidate who got left at the county Convention can be told by the way he grasps your hand, braces himself against his gurgling emotion, and whisperingly inquires:

"Did you ever hear of a case like it?"

You never did. You tell him that you never did, and he pulls you into a doorway and continues:

"I'm done with politics forever!"

"No!"

"Yes, I am, and with the party too!"

"You don't say!"

"Oh, but I am. This thing has satisfied me that there is no such thing as honesty in politics, and that a politician has no more word than a dog. I was sold out."

"Possible!"

"Sold out and lied out! They used money to beat me. They lied about me. They played hypocrite and knave. Here I have served the party for nineteen long years and never asked for an office, and the minute I decide to accept the nomination for a little 15 cent position they go to work and beat me in a convention with a woodenhead who doesn't know enough to mark a barrel of pork. Corruption, sir—cor-rup-shun—and the whole ticket will be defeated on account of it."

And the best of it is he takes you for a man who isn't posted. He doesn't believe you have the slightest idea that he packed three or four caucuses, bought a dozen delegates, told three lies to the other man's one, and was beaten because his delegates sold out. He takes you for an innocent, and he grasps your hand again at parting and chockingly says:

"Corruption—vile corruption! Most barefaced fraud in American politics! Can't train with a party upheld by the practice of such principles—can't possibly do it."

The Democrats of Berwick are making extensive arrangements for a grand jubilee next Saturday evening at 7 o'clock.

THE AMERICAN INSTITUTE ON SPERR'S WINES.

A committee was appointed to visit Alfred Speer's Vineyards at Passaic, N. J. to examine his wines and cellars and report. The following is a part of the report: Many will be a little suprised to learn that within so short a distance from this city, has been prosecuted an enterprise of so much importance, and with so much success.

The quality of these wines are not excelled by any producer in the world and during the season when the operations of handling the grapes, expressing the juices and the other treatment are in active progress it is interesting and instructive to visit the vineyards and witness the operation.

Cheap and Dear Housekeeping.

The housekeeping question still interests the many families who, particularly in large cities, find it hard to make both ends meet, or even vegetables without meat. One "housewife" writes to the Chicago Herald that with $10 a week she keeps a house for five persons and pays a girl. This, however, is very different from an income of $10 a week, on which some would persuade the public they are able to live in almost elegant ease. But even this amount for that number, five persons, including the wages of a girl, implies peculiar tact and great vigilance for its disbursement. She always buys for cash, getting her allowance every Friday and paying for the goods on delivery. She weighs every parcel and sends back short weight packages if the discrepancy is only half an ounce, so as to insure correct measurement afterwards. In order not to run up any kind of a bill she pays for her milk, cream, and newspaper every morning. During working hours she never leaves her girl a minute, and work ceases when the dinner dishes are cleared. Supper is omitted. The washing is on the line Mondays by 8 A. M., the ironing done by the same hour next morning. She saves soap by putting the clothes to soak over Sunday, and a few drops of ammonia also saves soap and labor. Ten cents' worth of indigo in a rag equals a year's supply of liquid bluing. She trades rags and old bottles for brooms, tins, and mops; saves money by buying the best creamery butter, and then not allowing much of it to be eaten; in cooking uses part lard instead of butter, and gives her children and the servants soups and stews, though her husband won't eat them. Baker's bread, she says, is a waste, and rice and cornmeal are in part substitutes for flour. Her "table is excellent," her "house is well kept," and she is confident that "not a cent's worth of waste goes on in her house," but one can't help feeling sory for her husband, her children, and her servant girls.

Another woman beleives that a family of six cannot be properly fed on less than $15 a week. She has three children under 15, and feeding them is like throwing victuals down a hatchway; while between meals apples, bread and butter, crackers and cookies disappear like magic. But they are in perfect health, and she thinks groceries cheaper than medicines; which is true, provided too many groceries do not make medicine necessary.

However, she reveals a valuable and ingenious secret as to the way to live in stone-front houses, keep two servants, support a family of ten in fine style on $1,200 a year. This remarkable family are living in her neighborhood just now, and she has learned all about them. They pay one month's rent and then stay in the house until the lease has expired, or the landlord expels them; then they go away owing butcher and grocer for several months supplies. Their appearance is good, the head of the family seems to be engaged in some lucrative business, and the tradsmen feel no anxiety. Except in this way the patent methods for lolling in luxury on annual incomes of only three or four small digets, may be set down as humbugs.

Preserving Eggs.

About a year ago I put down a quanity of fresh eggs in various ways for the purpose of testing the merits of each particular method. The lime and salt mixture, consisting of one pint of lime, newly slaked, and one pound of salt, well stirred in a ten-quart pail of water, kept the eggs very well for six months, when the whites began to become clouded and the yolks dark and too tough to beat up. The mixture of beeswax, melted with twice as much olive oil, smeared, while warm, over eggs, kept the eggs well for a year, and some of the eggs, yet unused, are still good. Those eggs which were thus prepared and packed in air slaked lime kept better than others packed in oats; the latter tasted considerably of the rancid oil, which seemed to be absorbed.

The eggs covered with melted paraffine kept the best of all, and those of them that were put down in weak brine, in which they sank to the bottom, kept better than others packed in dry salt or in plaster. Since then I have become acquainted with a German preparation of salt, saltpetre and borax, which, however, is patented in America. I have some eggs put down in this for five months, and they are equal to fresh eggs, even when boiled for eating, a very delicate test, as eggs very soon exhibit any staleness when cooked. An omelette made of eggs put down in this solution was very good, and so was one made of eggs a year old kept in paraffine, as was also a sponge-cake made of beaten eggs. Paraffine is easily removed from the shells by holding them in hot water for a short time. The salt and lime mixture and the German salt both keep the shells in perfect condition, and simple rinsing only is required to cleanse them. I think the German salt promises to be the best, but it is outrageously dear.—American Dairyman.

Scraps.

Every man is fond of striking the nail on the head; but when it happens to be the finger nail, his enthusism becomes wild and incherent.

Don't say a mean thing about any man, and it may possibly happen that some time one may be able truthfully to say a kind thing about you.

An old Japanese author says; "All the soldiers of a great army can be captured; but the thoughts of the most vulgar person cannot be arrested."

A man is said to be absent minded when he thinks he has left his watch at home and takes it out of his pocket to see if he has time to return home to get it.

"Well, my little man, aren't you barefooted rather early this season?" said a benevolent gentleman to a youngster, this morning. "guess not. Wuz born barefooted."

In the mountains.—Arabella (whose soul is wraped in science. "Charles, isn't this gneisa!" Charles (who is deeply interested in Arabella) :"Nice! It's delicious."

"My advice to de Hoosier brudder am not to lie or deceive in tradein' mules; but to answer as few queshuns as you kin, an' seem sort o' keerless whedder his offer am 'cepted or not."

A new railway was opened in the Highlands. A Highlander named Donald heard of it and bought a ticket for the first excursion. The train was a short distance from the station when a collision took place, and poor Donald was thrown unceremoneously into a park. After recovering his senses he made the best of his way home, when the neighbors asked him how he liked his ride. "Oh, said Donald, "I liked it fine, but they had an awful quick way in putting me out."

THE POULTRY HOUSE.—A person about to build should, if possible, observe and investigate some fowl house already erected that gives its owner satisfaction. A few general hints, however, may be given. For aspect the glazed front should face the east and south. This affords you the sun's rays from the earliest morning, to late afternoon, as a rule, and it is the early hours of sunlight and warmth that fowls mostly covet in winter and chilly spring time. The glazing should be entire upon one or two sides of the house, what ever may be its size or length. If the sashes are tightly placed, it is amply protective as a wall upon these two warm sides, while the cost is no more than ceiling or battens, and clapboarding. The birds will enjoy both the light and the warmth thus afforded them; and if the other two walls are banked up, or are made impervious to wind and wether by a double boarding (four inches between the inner and outer walls), packed to the eaves with straw daubed with coal-tar to keep off vermin, you may thus have a cheap, comfortable house that your early spring chickens will thrive in, and your adult birds will appreciate from December to April.—Am. Poultry Yard.

SOME USES OF SALT.—Col. Victor E. Poilet, of the Pennsylvania State Grange, thus writes of the uses of salt:

"I am in favor of using salt as a fertilizer and as an insect destroyer. I have used it on alluvial and diluvial land with good effect. Last year on fifteen acres of corn I applied eight bushels of salt to the acre, after drilling in the seed about one kernel to the foot. On that field were no cut worms, while my brother who doubted the efficacy of salt, planted without, and the cut worms destroyed a large share of his crop so that he had to plant it over. In the cultivation of turnips I have succeeded in destroying the black fly completely through the use of salt. I have tried salt in alternate strips in my wheat field, and found where the application was made no Hessian fly, while on the other strips the loss from ravages of the fly was estimated at from five to eight bushels to the acre. Farmers here who have not proved its effect, and do not care to venture largely, join and buy a carload, for it is cheaper to get it in bulk and parcel out after it is received.

BEETS FOR HOGS.—The sugar-beet industry is still kept up in various districts while in others it has languished somewhat. But the cultivation of this root for animals will, we are convinced, be much more general as time goes on. One who experimented in growing them for hogs says in an exchange:

"Two years ago I planted one acre of roots, mostly sugar beets, and raised seven hundred bushels. The beets were at the rate of 1,000 bushels to the acre, and carrots 600 bushels. I think sugar beets the proper feed to grow shoats. In the winter I put four hundred bushels into the barn and covered them with hay and straw. But the severe cold weather in January froze them solid, so I could not feed them to my cows as I intended to when I put them up. So I put them into a kettle, and cooked and fed them to my shoats, half a bushel of meal to three bushels of beets, and I never fed anything to hogs that made them grow so fast as they did while I was feeding those frozen beets.

"On rich soil 1,000 bushels can be easily raised to the acre. I shall try it again this year on a piece of old hog pasture. It wants three pounds of seed to the acre, put in drills with Comstock's drill, rows eighteen inches apart. If on new ground it requires but little tending to keep the weeds down. I tend mine mostly with the drill cultivator."

The mangold, a near relative of the beet, is a favorite root with many English dairymen for winter food for their cows.
